Using these specifications to choose a product

The pyramid reference identifies a white tipi-style camping shelter. The current catalog does not publish its dimensions or a pole specification. Use the silhouette to identify the reference, then request the floor outline, peak height, support arrangement and packed dimensions for a project shortlist. A similar shape in another product’s photograph is not evidence of matching size or construction.

For Pyramid Camping Tent, the published record states Product format: pyramid camping tent, Colour: white. Keep those values together under this reference when building a wholesale product shortlist; a value from a neighbouring model does not describe this item.

For a pyramid-tent quotation, attach the catalogue photograph and ask for front, rear and interior views of the proposed version. Use those views to identify entrances, closures and the support arrangement before agreeing a retail description. Ask the supplier to itemise the shelter body, supports, ground fixings and storage bag in the proposed supply scope. Keep optional parts on separate quotation lines so a photograph cannot be mistaken for the packing list.
